

ISOKOAT®

CHIMNEY REPAIR & RENOVATION SYSTEM FROM THE MANUFACTURERS OF ISOKERN FIREPLACE & CHIMNEY SYSTEMS

Trust your Chimney System Repairs to the Company that brought you
Isokern Fireplace & Chimney Systems

In old chimneys, the mortar joints between the bricks or stonework eventually fail. The mortar becomes porous, turns sandy and crumbles away. Then poisonous fumes, tars and condensation can all leak out of the flue into the home. This ISOKOAT flue coating and renovating system, developed by Isokern, has been used by thousands of installers in Europe since the 1950's and is now gaining popularity in North America. The system has demonstrated its simplicity and reliability and given many an old or leaking chimney a completely new lease on life.

The ISOKOAT Base Coat is applied under pressure and forced into the cracks and fissures, sealing them, re-pointing the joints and strengthening the walls. Mineral fiber reinforcement in the Base Coat ensures that the wet material will not pour or leak away through larger cracks, but will instead be forced into them, filling and bridging them. The coating builds up, using between two to four applications to provide a smooth, gas tight flue well which will withstand the effects of flue gases for years to come. The flue is fully repaired and sealed with virtually no reduction in size which is a very important factor in that the correct flue size must be maintained for the appliance served by the chimney.

BASE COAT USES

The Base Coat is suitable by itself for use in chimneys which are serving appliances which will not normally produce high levels of condensation or unusually high acidic flue conditions. This includes most open fire situations, including gas fires.

Supplies & Equipment
Needed for Repair

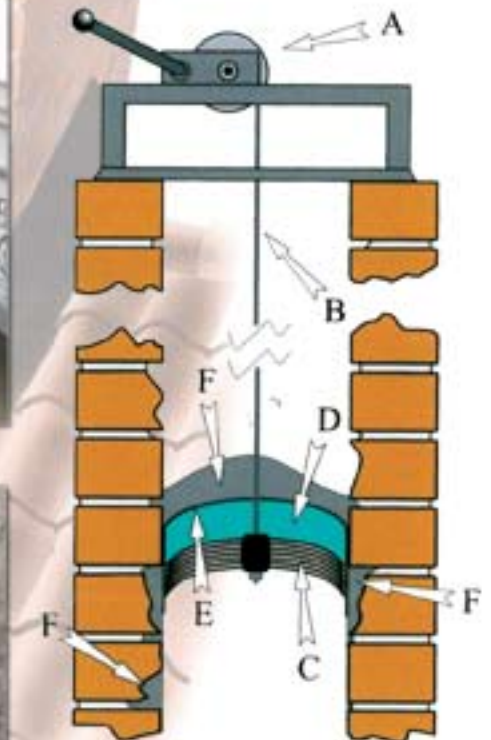

Lowering Winch Assembly

ISOKOAT Coating Apparatus

Finished Chimney Repair

- A. Hand Cranked Winch Assembly
- B. Pulley Wire
- C. Special Steel Bristled Brush
- D. Heavy Duty Sponge
- E. Membrane
- F. ISOKOAT Filling Material

Call us at 800.642.2920 to order your ISOKOAT today!